Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gerwe et al. (US 5,897,292) (previously cited) in view of Ingram et al. (US 3,739,902).

Gerwe et al. disclose-

- a compartment device with a plurality of compartments 21, 28a-b moved along a path 26, wherein each compartment is positioned to receive a respective one 10 of a plurality of objects,
- wherein a path is perpendicular to compartments of a compartment device,
- a transfer device that is moveable to move a respective object from an occupied one of a plurality of compartments and to move a respective object into an empty one of the compartments of the plurality of compartments, and
- an ejection device 27 to eject a series of objects from a plurality of compartments to form a stack 15, 30.

Ingram et al. discloses a pusher transfer device 204, 207 that is moveable to remove a respective object from an occupied conveyor TC berth to an empty conveyor TC berth. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the apparatus of Gerwe et al. to include a transfer device to remove a respective object from an occupied one of a plurality of compartments and to move a respective object into an empty one of the compartments of the plurality of compartments, as per the teachings of Ingram et al., where selectively patterning and grouping articles creates a stable stack and prevents damage to product during transit. C1.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-19 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Applicant's arguments filed Sept. 15, 2009 with respect to changing orientation (or lack thereof) in an apparatus have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. For example, there are a several characteristics which can be used to define orientation, horizontal, vertical, forward end and rearward end. In the case of Remericq, the orientation remains horizontal. Thus, there is no change in orientation. With respect to novelty, it is always best within the USPTO claiming lexicon to positively recite elements and their structure contrasted with functional uses. For example, claim 1 recites "a transfer device that is moveable to remove". (Emphasis added.) It would be better to recite –a transfer device further comprising a pusher with a position external to a top compartment to external a bottom compartment--.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
